What The West Is

Oh, give me a home in the golden west. Where the sand storms sweep o'er the prairie crest— Where we've rattlesnakes plenty and vinegar roans. And the night birds whistle, "Casey Jones"

Where the coyote's wail brings fifty cents. And the bull bat sleeps on the barb wire fence— Where the Mexican "rual" and the whoopoorwill Join in the chorus of Steamboat Bill."

Where the white faced cattle and broncho steed Go out and nibble the loco weed. And the farmer subsists on beautiful scenes. With an occasional feast on rabbits and beans. No crills, no fever, pellagra nor gout— We look lean and hungry, but are healthy and stout.

Already quite a number of persons from the country and other towns have purchased property in Lovington, and others are looking about for locations.

Lovington to Have Rural Route

Our postmaster has received a reply to the application for a rural route from Lovington north, which with a few changes in route to add ten miles, making it a fifty mile route, speaks favorably. This ten miles can be easily added so we think and thus the fifty mile rural route is almost assured, and will be a great help to the people in general as well as to Lovington especially.
